

The Mariana Islands provide the U.S. military with a safe training and testing environment and are an ideal setting because of their location in the Western Pacific.

